FOREWORD

This is a bold experiment in combining the best of the old and the best of the new in indexing National Conference publications printed in the years 1924-1962. We have indexed all the NCSW publications in this period using new techniques that hold great promise for unlocking the secrets of our publications for greater use.

The history of the NCSW has been the history of social welfare in the United States. Its 91 years of annual forums and its publications record the results of free critical discussion of social welfare methods, issues and problems - the major method of the Conference that has stood the test of time, not only in advancing the scientific boundaries of social work, but in providing a forum for any and all groups and organizations in the social welfare field.

To tap fully these rich resources, the Conference was faced with substantial problems. The printing of a conventional cumulative index is not practical, either for the users or from a financial point of view. The nature of social welfare subject matter and the needs of the field call for a more flexible and comprehensive plan.

To solve these problems, the Conference staff and committees turned to a new discipline known as Information Retrieval (IR) that has been growing apace. Actually, of course, information retrieval is quite ancient in many ways, for who has not retrieved information from a library, or his files, or a friend's memory? What is different about modern information retrieval is its modern scientific and logical methods. Today, the unwieldy mass of technical information is made available by using punch cards, coordinate indexes, special classification schedules, codes, and perhaps most striking of all to the layman, machines based on logical systems worked out according to mathematics and mathematical logic.

One of these new retrieval devices is the Keyword-in-Context (KWIC) Index - an automatic coding technique. The KWIC Index or title permutation indexing, is a combination of word and machine indexing. The entire index-producing operation is performed automatically once the title and related bibliographic data have been key punched for use as input to the computer. Many of the titles are amplified by the editorial insertions of keywords which further reveal the content of the document.

We present the first KWIC Index in social welfare. This technique is only one of several which the Conference will use in its information service. Selected bibliographies and individual searches in special subject areas will also be available beginning July 1, 1964. We recognize that machine printing is more difficult to read than conventional type and the technique may be new to many of our members. However, the fact that we were able to produce such an Index with our limited resources and the great potential inherent in our system holds great future for indexes and other information data on a regular annual basis.

INTRODUCTION

MAIN PORTIONS OF THE INDEX

This is a keyword-in-context (KWIC) index* to the National Conference on Social Welfare's printed publications from 1924 through 1962. It is divided into three main parts: Keyword Index, Bibliography, and Author Index.

Keyword Index

The keywords in each manuscript title are arranged alphabetically down the center of each column, beginning on page 1. Within the printing space allotted, each title is shifted to the right, one keyword at a time, and placed in alphabetical order with all other keywords. In this present volume many of the titles have been amplified by the editorial insertion of keywords which further reveal the content of the papers. These keywords appear within virgules (//) immediately following the title.

Words not considered of subject interest are excluded from the keyword list. A full list of these words may be found on page xi.

Some compound words have been divided so that their parts index separately.

Bibliography

ADDAJ - 24 - ICS Addams, J
 International Cooperation for Social Welfare
 300-03614-924 NCSW Proceedings, V. 51, p. 107-117
 University of Chicago Press, Chicago, 1924

The letters and number code on the left identifies the entry and the year the manuscript was presented. The name of the author and the title and source of the report are at the right.

Author Index

This section lists all authors included in the index, along with the letter and number codes common to entries in the Bibliography.

HOW TO USE THE KWIC INDEX

Words which arouse the particular interest of the reader may be found in the alphabetic keyword listing. When a given word is located, a glance to the left and right will reveal its relationship to the title. Access to complete bibliographic information may be gained by matching the letter and number code printed after the keyword entry with the identical code appearing in alphabetic order in the Bibliography.

The names of all authors and the letter and number code of their works are listed in the Author Index. Access to the Bibliography may be made through the Author Index when authors' names are known.

PUNCTUATION GUIDE

Only four marks of punctuation can be printed by the computer used to produce this index. They are: the period (.) the comma (,) the dash (-) and the virgule (/).

ABBREVIATIONS

The initials NCSW are the only abbreviations used, and they stand for the National Conference on Social Welfare as well as for the Conference's previous name, the National Conference of Social Work.

*This system was developed by H. P. Luhn of IBM and was originally documented in "Keyword-in-Context Index for Technical Literature (KWIC Index)," IBM Corp., 1959.

APPENDIX A - Guide to NCSW Printed Publications

The agencies and libraries listed below have been either Conference members for 20 years or more or have been on the Columbia University Press "standing order" list for a similar period. It is assumed that they have a substantial number of publications included in this Index. It is suggested that individuals call an agency to see whether it has library facilities.

Years of membership are indicated by numerals after the name.

APPENDIX E - The National Conference on Social Welfare

"The NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON SOCIAL WELFARE is an organization made up of 8000 individual and agency members representing all aspects of social welfare in the United States.

One of its major functions is to conduct an Annual Forum for the critical examination of basic social welfare problems and issues.

The Annual Forum -- which is attended by 4500 to 8000 people each year -- offers the entire social welfare community a rich opportunity:

To exchange ideas and techniques -- between laymen and professional workers, public and voluntary agencies.

To improve standards of performance, to increase the effectiveness of individual agencies.

To develop a better understanding of social welfare problems, needs, programs and methods.

To develop citizens' support of and participation in social welfare activities."
